

AVIAN AND EXOTIC PHYSICAL RESTRAINT RELEASE FORM

I understand that the procedure to be performed today involves physical restraint, which alone or in conjunction with the procedure may result in an unexpected death.

It has been explained to me that systemic or underlying diseases, such as liver disease or malnutrition, can exacerbate the stress response and lead to a cardiac arrest.

In particular, I realize that routine procedures, such as beak and teeth trims, are especially risky due to the likely association of underlying disease.
